

Freewill and Trust

There is always more to a story than is told. We have been given free will and more often than not the process is interrupted.

The opportunities always exist and we are in constant search of what we are destined to achieve.

Trusting one's insights will bring the successes that are already in place. Remember it is not a wish of self to fail.

Once again, free will can alter the course that has been planned and set in place.

–BARBARA LYNN