

Harbours and Destinations

Harbours can be a safe place, a refuge for a ship in a storm.

The risk is that the harbour remains a place of refuge for too long.

In its safeness, it becomes an entrapment and the ship becomes a part of the harbour.

The adventure lies with the sea, not the harbour.

Set sail to expand and rest when necessary.

The harbour is a stopover, not a destination.

-BARBARA LYNN