

Imagination the Pathway

Imagination is the pathway to life itself.
Imagination is the ability to create whatever it is we desire.
Imagination is a bridge to other realms.
Imagination is the gateway to existence beyond the normal view of perception. It is imagination that allows for travel through the eternities of past to present, from present to future.

Be still and imagine. Create as you go forward. The kings and queens are but the same as all the rest. He or she who can imagine, the kingdom is theirs.

Like the spider weaving a web, so to do we weave our existence, pathway after pathway, reaching our goals.

As we imagine the pathways, they carry us along on our journey of life. With imagination one is free to leave the well known, trodden path and venture past and beyond what he or she is accustomed to.

Allowing one's self to imagine, takes one to new levels of understanding, a look beyond. There are no limitations, only the ones which are self-imposed. The pathways are infinite. All this is available but one must remain true to him or her self. It is their responsibility to imagine for themselves only, not for other people.

—BARBARA LYNN